

I would like to strongly urge the FCC to continue the ban on the use of cell phones aboard aircraft. Aircrafts are tightly confined spaces where hundreds of people are forced to spend many hours packed together. Sitting on a plane with even a few 'cell yell' types screaming into their cell phones will quickly make the situation untenable leading to unfortunate incidents. We need to respect the fact that an aircraft is not a normal public space and that special rules have to apply if civility is to continue. So please, maintain the ban.
